

Protection of PII in Public Record Request

Company Profile

High-Profile State University

Client Challenge

A high-profile state university, was required to produce documents consisting of hundreds of thousands of pages in response to various public record requests. These documents contained more than 40 different types of information that were exempt from production, including HIPAA and PII. Beyond complying with standard privacy considerations, the university could have faced significant penalties for producing certain personal information relating to students.

Matter Summary

A high-profile state university required to produce documents that include protected information.

Consilio Response

The team implemented a custom workflow to not only identify the documents that required redaction, but to also index over 40 types of production exemptions and to ensure the client avoided possible penalties for producing protected information.
